

CONFERENCE 29/11/2019

The new EU « Green Deal »

Opportunities and challenges
for the construction sector

FIEC is ready for the #EUGreenDeal challenge!

On 29th November in Paris, FIEC held a conference on "The EU Green Deal: opportunities and challenges for the construction sector". This was a response to European Commission President Ursula von der Leyen's commitment to make Europe "the World's first climate-neutral continent". Keynote speaker Brice Lalonde, President of the think tank "Equilibre des Energies" (EdEn), urged the construction industry to be proactive, make its voice heard and explain clearly its needs, whilst at the same time offering solutions to EU decision-makers.

FIEC President Kjetil Tønning declared that the construction industry is ready for the EU Green Deal. "We have already been building sustainably for years and we will take a step by step approach towards these evermore ambitious environmental goals. We are an industry undergoing transformation anyway and we will set some key green priorities, to enable us to fulfill our environmental obligations," he said.

©Franck Benoncle

Keynote Speaker : Brice Lalonde,
President of EdEn (Association Équilibre des Énergies)

CONFERENCE 29/11/2019

The new EU « Green Deal »

Opportunities and challenges
for the construction sector

Panel discussion moderated by Alex Puissant

